Today's society needs a lot of scientific opinions about Covid-19, not only from the medic side but also from a social science perspective. this paper has the potential to become a major reference in dealing with the covid-19 pandemic in social science.

ask the two authors to make a slight improvement in the writing standards of the IJCS papers, especially in the reference numbers.

Reviewer C:

during the COVID-19 pandemic the problem of communication became one of the main issues that was not addressed. people more often discuss medical and treatment issues than discuss other issues. even though there are not a few experts and policy makers who need social science and communication references in dealing with this pandemic. this manuscript is eligible for a place at IJCS.

please make a little improvement to the references so that this paper meets the IJCS publication criteria.

The COVID-19 impact crisis communication model using gending jawa local wisdom

Puji Lestari, Sularso Sularso

Abstract

Pandemic COVID-19 is a new epidemic that is sweeping the world with a high level of fatal potential. The role of communication is vital as a response to global health disasters. Thus, the communication network and information dissemination process about COVID-19 need to be expanded as a disaster mitigation effort. The question is how information dissemination can be done, whereas, on the other hand, a person is prohibited from crowding and having physical meetings. Based on this question, this research was conducted to obtain a crisis communication model and what strategies are used in communicating it. This study aims to find a COVID-19 impact crisis communication model using the local wisdom of Gending Jawa in Ngandong Village. Gending Jawa is Javanese traditional music, also known as Karawitan. This study used a qualitative descriptive method with a simulation with the leaders and members of the Jati Art Studio, community leaders/religious leaders, and village officials. The results of this study are in the form of the discovery of a COVID-19 impact crisis communication model using the local wisdom of Gending Jawa. The contribution of this research is the COVID-19 crisis communication, model whose results can be used or applied to other communities.
