

Abstrak

This thesis discusses the role of the UN World Food Programme (WFP) in addressing the malnutrition in Timor Leste period 2006-2014. Timor Leste is a young country and brittle. In 2005, Timor Leste experienced a high malnutrition problem this is because the factors of poverty, low education, civil conflict and poor health services. This thesis will be elaborated on the condition of the malnutrition that is sweeping Timor Leste and how the actions of the government and WFP as a food relief organizations to address this issue.

The concept of the malnutrition and international organizations are used in this problem, which is reinforced with a liberal approach to explain the role of international organizations to solve the problems that occur in the dynamics of international relations. To address those problems, the researcher uses a qualitative research method and in data collection, the researcher uses techniques of literature study (library research) and online research.

From the discussion of this paper, it is found that the WFP as food aid organizations have an important role to strive and to solve the malnutrition in Timor Leste, either act as an arena or as an instrument. WFP programs that run in Timor Leste is divided into 2 that is operational role and rule creating. Operational role carried through FFA / W, School Feeding, Maternal and child health nutrition and Cash for Work. The role of rule creating by assisting the government in developing the capacity of government, management development programs and management development foodstuffs.

Keyword : Malnutrition, Timor Leste