

ABSTRACT

This is article discusses about the United States policy to eradicate virus H1N1 (swine influenza) outbreak. In April 2009, the World Health Organisation (WHO) reported that swine influenza outbreak first detection in Mexico and then in Canada, United States and other countries in the world. transmission of Swine influenza outbreak can be transmitted of human to human and the new virus H1N1 has the potential to become pandemic international. The United States is one country that is infected by the H1N1 virus. it can be seen from the number of people infected the H1N1 virus and mortality in the United States that caused by the virus. therefore, a range of policies implemented by the United States government, both domestic policy and foreign policy of the United States to combat the H1N1 virus.

Keywords: policy, United States, Virus H1N1, swine influenza