

ABSTRACT

The delimitation of maritime boundaries between countries is the determination of its frontiers or power between one country to another (neighbors) in the sea. In the context of the maritime boundary, first, the meaning of the maritime boundary limit (maritime limits) and maritime borders (maritime boundaries) should be understood. The maritime boundary limit is the outer limit of the maritime zone of a country (territorial sea, contiguous zone, ZEE, landing contingent) that it with is measured from the baseline. Every country in the boundary could lead to conflict caused by annexation and lack of understanding between the countries bordering directly. The delimitation of maritime boundaries is needed to avoid that so each country's territorial stability is clear and safe.
